ILL-GOTTEN GAINS: Police estimate this factory could produce cannabis worth £800,000 every six weeks

Raid uncovers 723-plant cannabis factory inside old healthcare site

William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

HUNDREDS of cannabis plants have been found by police in a former NHS health clinic in Harlow.

It is thought the gang behind the operation housed in the empty premises at Wych Elm House was able to produce £800,000-worth of the drug every six weeks.

Officers uncovered a total of 723 plants in various stages of growth and with a potential street value of more than £1m when they raided the building on Sunday morning.

Hydroponics

As well as the crop, they seized a large quantity of advanced hydroponics equipment which had been used in the cultivation of the plants.

Investigating officer PC Tim Knights said: "We received information about the site on Saturday evening and a search warrant was obtained overnight.

"Officers executed the warrant at about 7am the next morning."

Eight treatment rooms in the former clinic were equipped with lighting, watering and ventilation gear.

Bat fans (young and old) in the hot seat

A SMALL but iconic piece of television history came to Harlow on Saturday when the original Batmobile from the 1960s Batman series arrived in the town centre. The car, which was built in 1966, was one of four identical batmobiles constructed to be used in the first ever series of the show which featured Adam West as the Caped Crusader.

Shoppers who arrived early at the Water Gardens to see it being driven into place by Esquires and Greggs were treated to the spectacle of the car's flamethrower afterburn which is still in working order.

It's arrival was timed to coincide with Father's Day weekend. Dads and sons were able to have their pictures taken in the driving seat.

Dads were also entered into a lucky dip for instant win prizes.

Water Gardens manager Beryl Murphy said: "It was a really

BOY WONDER: Above, Charlie Wickenden in the Batmobile which arrived in Harlow town centre on Saturday

quirky way of celebrating Father's Day and fantastic to see so much interest."

Grave concern over 'dodgy' headstones

Safety fears spark search for descendants

William Mata

william.mata@hertssexnews.co.uk

CHURCH authorities are appealing for help to trace the descendants of a number of people buried at one of Harlow's oldest churches.

The search has been sparked by concern that some of the headstones in the churchyard at St Mary's, in Great Parndon, are leaning to such an extent that they may be a safety hazard.

The church is seeking permission from the descendants of those buried under the memorial stones to lay them flat on the ground.

Ray Curtis, a member of the congregation and a former churchwarden, said the decision was made to lay the gravestones flat on the ground after a boy was crushed by a dislodged stone in Glasgow.

Rev Noelle Taylor is now leading the search to trace the descendants of

Joseph and Elizabeth Appleton, a second Elizabeth Appleton, Annie and Benjamin Fairchild, Susanna Low and John Woodrow.

"We were approached by the Diocese of Chelmsford to make the appeal to descendants," said Mr Curtis. "The procedure within the church means we are required to ask around before we lay down any dodgy gravestones."

"You can't use the phone book any more to track people down and it's not as easy these days, even with Google."

"I'm hoping we can contact these people by running a story in the Star."

He added: "The matter will go to the church authorities in Chelmsford at the end of August and we will then get a yes or a no."

"If things go according to plan we will begin to lower the stones in the autumn."

Anyone with family connections to the people laid to rest beneath the headstones should contact Mr Curtis on 07720 096990.

£800k drug factory find at NHS walk-in centre site

■ From front page

The raid came as a surprise to local traders, who had no idea of what was going on just a few yards from their premises.

Martin Dunn, 53, who runs Essex Bathrooms and Kitchens next door to Wych Elm House, said: "It was shocking to hear what was going on above where we are working."

"There are 12 staff here and we work from 6am to late but we had no suspicion."

"There was no smell, or even a cover-up smell. We heard footsteps but we thought maybe it was being refurbished; we had no inkling at all."

"We were shocked when customers were coming in on Monday saying that we were on the front page of The Sun."

Dennis Harris, 53, who works at HPS Motorcycles, said: "I had no suspicions."

"It was being used by people from the hospital but it closed around six months ago."

Surprised

"The first we heard about it was this morning and I was quite surprised."

And Mason Hendry, who works at Ripped Gym, added: "It did not bother me too much, really. I heard about it this morning when a friend texted me."

"It's Harlow after all, what do you expect?"

PC Knights added: "We are carrying out extensive enquiries and are appealing for information from the public."

"We would like to hear from anyone who saw people regularly going to the site and perhaps carrying large boxes of equipment or seedlings."

"We also urge people to let us know if they see signs of cannabis cultivation such as blacked out windows, people regularly attending sites that are disused and regular deliveries of large boxes or materials to empty properties."

■ Anyone with information about the Wych Elm House site should contact PC Knights at Harlow police station on 101 or Crimestoppers on 0800 555111."

77 arrested in drink and drug crackdown on county's roads

MORE than 70 people have been arrested on suspicion of driving under the influence of drink or drugs during the first three weeks of Essex Police's summer crackdown.

The campaign was launched at the beginning of the month and figures released by the force on Tuesday revealed that a total of 941 drivers had been stopped. Of the 917 who were breathalysed, 73 were arrested on suspicion of driving while over the legal alcohol limit or for refusing or failing to provide a breath test.

Four drivers have been arrested on suspicion of driving under the influence of drugs.

A spokesman for Essex Police said: "Our officers take robust action against drink and drug drivers 365 days a year but will continue to take part in the national summer campaign until the end of the month."

■ MOTORISTS who were caught filming the scene of a serious crash on the M25 in Essex are to be prosecuted.

Closed

The carriageway at Thurrock was closed for nine hours on Thursday while the emergency services dealt with the aftermath of an accident involving three heavy goods vehicles.

Police officers saw some motorists who were diverted past the accident or who driving on the opposite carriageway slowing down to photograph or film the scene on mobile phones.

As a result, more than 40 will receive warnings that they will be summoned to court for careless driving or for using a mobile phone while driving.

Adam Pipe, casualty reduction manager for Essex Police, said: "Officers dealing with this serious collision were shocked and disappointed at the behaviour of drivers passing the scene."

"Although vehicles were passing slowly, the offending drivers were distracted and could easily have caused further crashes that could have caused injury or added to delays."

"They were not in proper control of their vehicles and that means they were driving carelessly."

Family donates £25k to breast cancer unit

THE family of a woman who lost her battle against breast cancer has given £25,000 to the clinical trials unit at Harlow's Princess Alexandra Hospital and St Margaret's Hospital in Epping.

The money donated by Jean and Mike Falco, trustees of the Maria Falco Memorial Trust, will sponsor the lead research nurse post at the unit.

The charity was set up by their daughter Maria, who began raising funds for the unit after she was diagnosed with the disease. She wanted all women with breast cancer to have access to the latest treatments available.

Maria died in 2005 at the age of 39 but her parents, along with Maria's sister Helena, friends and other charity trustees Kevin Bunce and Reg Geggus, have continued fundraising.

The charity has raised more than £320,000 since it was launched.

Mrs Falco, 71, of Woodford

Green, said: "It's not as easy to raise money now but what keeps driving me on is Maria. She'd be absolutely thrilled that we carried on her fundraising."

Her husband added: "We want to carry on because the trials have real treatment outcomes. Herceptin, one of the most widely used breast cancer treatment drugs, was trialled at the Princess Alexandra Hospital."

Mum-of-two Helena, 46, who lives in Sawbridgeworth and works part-time for the trials unit's research nurses, said: "My sister's biggest wish was for us to carry on because she didn't want this to happen to other people so it's nice to carry on her legacy."

Ashraf Patel, associate specialist in breast surgery, said: "The Falco family are fantastic long-term supporters of our clinical trials unit and without them we could not have undertaken some of our important research."

Police investigate bus driver video

Clip appears to show him using mobile phone

William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A VIDEO recording of a bus driver apparently using a mobile phone while at the wheel of his vehicle is being investigated by police.

The clip shows the driver of the Town Link bus with one hand on the wheel and the other holding the phone to his ear as he drives along Epping High Street.

The video, which was taken by Harlow cyclist Dave Sherry over the weekend and uploaded to YouTube, has been viewed by almost 2,000 people, with many posting comments critical of the driver.

The footage was passed on to Essex Police after it was posted online.

A police spokesman confirmed: "We have been passed footage of a bus driver allegedly using a mobile phone at the wheel of his vehicle.

"The offence is alleged to have happened on Saturday in Epping High Street. The matter is currently being investigated by the Collision Reduction Investigation Team at South Woodham Ferrers."

The Star contacted Town Link for a response but it declined to comment.

Mr Sherry, who has attached a camera to his cycle helmet to record examples of poor driving, has shamed more than 400 motorists online with his videos.

He cycles almost 40 miles a day and started recording dangerous drivers after he was hit by a car.

It is against the law to drive while using a mobile. Anyone convicted could face charges of a £100 fine and three penalty points on a driving license.

If it is confirmed the driver was using the phone, he could also be subject to disciplinary hearings as the video showed several passengers to be on board the bus at the time.

Town parking is a real pain

SIR Struggling to park outside your home is frustrating but being unable to park in the road you live is intolerable and, on occasion, expensive.

My partner and I moved to Hare Street Springs more than seven years ago when parking throughout the estate was controlled by permits. But as result of a rule change – and presumably the cost of painting bays on the road – permits for the Harberts Road side of the estate were removed.

For a year or so being sandwiched between two permit-controlled zones – Little Grove Field and Hare Street – wasn't a problem. Then, after justified complaints from residents in roads near PAH, the council introduced permits and forced hospital workers to look elsewhere. That's when they found Harberts Road.

Now when I return home from work there is nowhere to park. I can't park elsewhere because of the permits so where do I go? On occasion I've been forced to pay to park at the town centre and walk home.

Is this really good enough Harlow Council? Did anyone even consider the implications of creating more permit zones near those without them?

To add insult to injury I was told that because I lived on the Harberts Road side of the estate I could not apply for a permit to park in rest of Hare Street Springs.

Parking is a problem across a town that was not designed for the number of cars owned by modern households. But the blame for this problem lies largely with the council and is a lack of forward thinking.

Give cowslips time to grow

SIR Further to the debate about grass cutting, the area around Staple Tye is cut too often to allow cowslips to multiply on the Southern Way bank while the trees and bushes between the Staple Tye car park and Lister House have grown more than half way across the pavement.

They are hanging so low that pedestrians have to duck and walk in single file to get by, this is dangerous for blind people.

The council men used to keep it looking so nice.

Sorry, Rob, but Posh is right

SIR I could not believe what Robert Halfon said in response to Victoria Beckham's comments on Harlow. She was quite right.

Mr Halfon talks about our wonderful town. Is he on this planet? Does he not go round the same town?

He needs to walk by the bus station where you are greeted by pigeons attacking you and, if you are unlucky enough, being hit by a beer can.

It was a lovely town years ago when people were given nice homes, but not now. Shops are closing all the time; I wonder if Mr Halfon would like to take Mrs Beckham to see our closed Marks & Spencers, the Odeon cinema or Little Walk? I'm sure she would love to see that!

Please wake up and help get our town back before it's too late.

Coverage was very positive

SIR Your coverage of young people in a recent edition of the Star was very uplifting ('Spotlight shines in high flyers and those who motivate them', June 11).

It is encouraging to see space given to the true face of young people today.

The vast majority of young people in Harlow are caring and ambitious. They want to do well in life and contribute to society, so their courage, commitment and achievement deserves to be highlighted.

Well done on focusing on the positive contribution that our young people make.

Giving carers a short break

SIR Earlier this month the nation celebrated Carers Week. I'd like to tell your readers how our charity is just as devoted to supporting carers as carers are to supporting their loved ones.

Essex's 146,000 carers form a significant proportion of the 1.3 million-strong population of carers living across London and the south east. We understand that many of these carers work relentlessly to provide support to their loved ones – but what if the carer is simply unable to carry on coping?

We've conducted plentiful research in recent years into the impact that a lack of time away from caring can have.

We found that 80 per cent of carers put the health of their loved ones ahead of their own and 60 per cent said that a lack of time away from caring led them to feelings of depression.

With as many as four out of 10 carers not having taken any time off from caring in the past year, often working 24/7, it is vital that we provide as many carers as possible with the opportunity to take regular respite breaks and help to restore their ability to cope.

That's why we want to remind carers that we're here to help.

I work for Revitalise, an amazing local charity that provides respite holidays for disabled people and their carers from around the region and beyond at our Jubilee Lodge holiday centre in Chigwell.

We understand the significance of being able to leave the stresses of everyday life behind, if only for a short while – that's why our breaks serve to restore, rejuvenate and reinvigorate, just like our name suggests!

If any of your readers would like to find out more about Revitalise, our breaks or ways that we can help you, please call 0303 303 0147 or visit www.revitalise.org.uk.

Can we have your pay rise?

SIR I was delighted to read reports that MPs across the country may be donating their proposed pay rises to charity.

I hope when making such donations, MPs will consider charities like the British Polio Fellowship, as for many smaller charities such as ourselves, even small donations make a massive difference to the services we provide.

The British Polio Fellowship is committed to supporting and empowering more than 120,000 people in the UK living with the late effects of polio and post polio syndrome (PPS) and we hope those MPs declining a salary increase will consider us.

Donations allow us to assist those living with polio and PPS, providing them and their families with support, advice and guidance.

If you need our help, we are just a click, phone call or email away.

Challenge to encourage healthy lifestyle changes

A PROJECT aiming to help more than 1,000 people lead a healthy lifestyle will launch next month.

Following on from the success of No Junk July last year, personal trainers Mitch Price and Caroline Collins are running the challenge again next month and hope to sign 1,000 people up. Jason Fryer, pictured right with Mrs Collins, has already signed up.

Jason, who lives in Harlow, said: "I did NJJ last year. It was amazing, especially the end result, but like many I fell off the wagon as the year went on and since then have put in over a stone in weight. I am going to prove that this time I am going to make this a permanent lifestyle change."

Under the challenge participants will give up junk food for the month of July and attempt daily workout which changes each week.

Mitch said: "No Junk July was created to help people looking get their diet on track through healthy eating, by going back to basics with a fun challenge that provided a sense of community too. Hundreds of people take part each year with many seeing improvements in their body."

To sign up search No Junk July on Facebook and Twitter.

Man, 72, dies after being hit by train

Police say victim was struck by Stansted Express

William Mata

william.mata@hertsexnews.co.uk

A MAN was killed after being hit by a train near Harlow Mill station.

The 72-year-old local man was pronounced dead at the scene, according to the British Transport Police, who were called at 5.51pm on Thursday last week.

BTP were summoned to the incident, along with medics from the East of England Ambulance Service but could not save the man.

The man was hit by a Stansted Express train en route from the airport to London Liverpool Street.

The identity of the victim has not yet been released and a file is being prepared and will be sent to the Essex coroner.

A BTP spokesman said that the incident was being treated as "non-suspicious".

The incident disrupted rush hour services on the line, with scheduled trains between London Liverpool Street and Cambridge and Stansted Airport subjected to delays into the evening.

STATION: British Transport Police at Harlow Mill station on Thursday

In some cases journeys were extended by up to 40 minutes because of the incident and a bus service between Broxbourne and Bishop's Stortford was in operation from 7.30pm.

Harlow Mill station was closed while emergency services dealt with incident.

It is likely the train was travelling at high speed as it had called at Harlow Town station at 5.40pm but was not due to stop at Harlow Mill.

Free fobs are the key in safety scheme

HUNDREDS of Harlow residents over the age of 60 have been given free key fobs as part of a county-wide safety scheme.

The Keep Safe fobs contain telephone numbers of relatives, friends and carers and can be used to contact someone in situations where the holder is feeling unwell, disorientated or upset.

More than 50 venues in the town, including libraries and shops which display the Keep Safe logo, provide free access to a telephone or will make a call on behalf of someone producing their fob.

Harlow Council deputy leader Emma Toal said: "The scheme helps people, especially older residents, keep their independence so they can continue to go out and about without feeling vulnerable."

"In recent months we have been working with other organisations to raise awareness of the scheme, particularly as part of the aim to make Harlow a dementia-friendly community."

"Over 1,500 fobs have been handed out so far and people are using the scheme."

One resident who has been given a fob said she now feels more confident going out by herself.

Evelyn Maitland, 84, said: "It's nice to know that someone would help me if I needed it."

"On a recent trip to hospital I couldn't remember my daughter's mobile phone number. The nurse took the number from my Keep Safe fob and rang my daughter directly, so it was very useful indeed."

To join the scheme contact Becci Court on (01279) 446455 or email becci.court@harlow.gov.uk

Inspirational Aimee fights back against school bullies

Teenager using her own experience to help others

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A BRAVE schoolgirl who was taunted by bullies has launched a social media campaign to encourage victims to speak out.

Aimee Chung is reaching out to young people across Harlow, who may be suffering in silence at the hands of their tormentors.

The inspirational 15-year-old, who lives in the Latton Green area, suffered a relentless campaign of mental and physical abuse from fellow pupils over a six-year period.

Her health deteriorated, her confidence evaporated and she ended up suffering from anxiety.

But now the St Marks West Essex Catholic School student is fighting back by launching a new venture – Stop Bullying: Save A Life – to educate schoolteachers and pupils on the issues surrounding bullying and where they can go for help.

"I don't think that people realise how big of an impact this sort of thing has on people, long-term or short," Aimee explained. "These experiences will stick with that person for the rest of their lives. It's not right for one to have to live through so much fear and torture."

"Being someone who has had many experiences with this – verbal, emotional and even physical – I wanted people to know that there's always someone to talk to."

"Although it may seem like no-one cares

Fact file

- Almost 45,000 children talked to ChildLine about bullying last year
- More than 1,400 young people talked to ChildLine about racist bullying last year
- Over half of lesbian, gay and bisexual young people have experienced homophobic bullying at school
- More than 16,000 young people are absent from school due to bullying
- More than 16,000 young people are absent from school due to bullying
- There are no official statistics on the number of children who are bullied and no-one understands, there will always be that one teacher or adult you can rely and trust upon, who will stand by you and provide the support that you need. No matter how much you believe that there is no way out, there is."

She added: "I was always told to ignore it due to the fact that my teachers thought it was harmless 'banter' as they call it. It didn't help at all. Things just got a lot worse 'ignoring it'."

"What really inspired me to start it up [the site] was my Head of Year. She never once said to ignore it or not to do anything at all. She was the only one after so many years.

"If more teachers were like her, I believe this wouldn't be such a bad situation as it is now. I want to assure those [suffering] that seeking advice and help is the best way forward. I did. I promise, it will get better. There's no doubt about it."

"I also want to show people how easy it is just to make someone feel worthwhile. To put a stop before any more harm is done. I completely understand why some teachers, bystanders and other adults respond the way they do. It is very hard to stop it and react to it. Nevertheless, never tell someone to ignore it – it's the worst advice ever."

"Bullying – maybe it won't ever stop.

That's how society is. However, we can still change the way others perceive and react. We can make a difference as a community."

Almost half (46 per cent) of children and young people said they had been bullied at school at some point in their lives, according to the NSPCC, while 18 per cent who were worried about bullying said they would not talk to their parents about it.

Aimee, who lives with her parents and sisters Joanne, 13, and Chloe, 10, is currently studying for her GCSEs. She has already spoken with a number of adults and young people through the page, which can be found on Facebook.

AIMEE CHUNG: "I don't think that people realise how big of an impact this sort of thing has on people."

Couple's plea for return of £10,000 ring

A COUPLE are offering a reward for the return of a diamond-encrusted eternity ring which was lost during a night out.

Property manager Steve Redmond and wife Charmain, of Middle Street, Nazeing, were dining at a restaurant in Hoddesdon on Saturday when Mrs Redmond left the £10,000 ring in the bathroom.

Mr Redmond, 46, said: "I got it for her 13 years ago. We were having a baby and we lost it five months into the pregnancy.

"It was devastating, we were trying really hard to have a baby."

The couple went on to have two sons but the ring has great sentimental value.

"When Charmain realised it was missing she started crying," said Mr Redmond. "I never slept the whole night."

Mr Redmond reported the loss to police and has also contacted the National Pawnbrokers Association and the British Cheque and Credit Association.

The ring is described as large, made of silver and weighs around 20g. It includes 57 diamonds.

Restaurant owner Adam Marconato said: "They are long-standing customers and I am devastated as much as they are."

Anyone with information about the ring can contact Mr Redmond on 07884 258664.

Views sought on motorway junction plan

Proposal includes option for northern bypass

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsexnews.co.uk

ESSEX County Council has restarted its consultation for a proposed new junction for the M11 at Harlow.

Harlow has significant traffic congestion problems during peak times which will get worse as the town grows.

County Hall say a solution is needed to reduce the increasing strain on the local road network, a situation which is exacerbated by the existing very limited connections to the wider road network.

As part of the consultation residents will be asked for their views on the plans, which also include measures for a future northern by-pass of Harlow.

Concerns

But Harlow councillor Mike Danvers says the scheme is "pie in the sky" and does not address the concerns of residents living in Gilden Way and Old Harlow.

"The new junction will still lead onto Gilden Way, where there is currently development," he said. "I think it's just a rehashing of an old plan and doesn't address the concerns of residents living in Old Harlow."

Last year, a consultation into the new junction was shelved after residents complained of not being able to register a negative response.

Since then the Conservative-run county council, as the highways authority, has been investigating various options to improve access into and out of the Harlow area, including options for a new junction 7A connecting to the M11 between junctions 7 and 8.

There will be a series of exhibitions to present the current status of these investigations and to show the options being considered.

These will include the proposals for the new junction on the M11, and the likely effects on the surrounding area, including Gilden Way and The Campions.

Information

Three staffed public exhibitions will be held in the east Harlow area during July. They have been designed to provide current information about all of the options being considered, and to explain where in the planning process we are.

They will also show the steps involved in selecting the preferred route option and set out the timetable for when and how Essex County Council will be formally consulting on this.

The first exhibition will be held on Tuesday, July 7 at Sheering Village Hall between 1.30pm and 8pm. This will be followed by exhibitions at St John's Art and Recreation Centre in Old Harlow on Thursday, July 9 and Wednesday, July 15, both between 2pm and 8pm.

Musicians rock ceremony as school picks up award

HARD work paid off for young musicians at Harlow Rock School who scooped six honours at the Jack Petchey awards.

The 2015 awards were held at Harlow Playhouse, with MP Robert Halfon presenting honours to inspiring youngsters.

Rock School opened the show in typical style with a student performance of Airbourne classic Too Much, Too Young, Too Fast.

The six students who won achievement awards were Dan Cox, Lizzie Hunt, Kieran Berry, Liam Etheridge, Natasha Gunn and Matt Seeley. Martin Elven, co-ordinator at the Harlow Youth Hub-based school was also presented with a leader award.

"This award is for everyone," he said. "I'm not in it for the plaudits. I devote my time because what I get in return is immeasurable."

Sporting students take a leap of faith

PUPILS scaled new heights when they were given an exclusive session at a new climbing area in Harlow Leisurezone.

The leisure centre in Second Avenue offered 50 children from Cooks Spinney School the chance to tackle 19 themed challenges including the UK's tallest step tower, the Leap of Faith.

Vertigo Harlow, as the new area has been called, was opened to the public yesterday (Wednesday) but the pupils enjoyed their sneak preview last week.

It was a chance for them to let off steam after studying for their SATs.

Cooks Spinney had been approached by Leisurezone which was looking for children to test out the new apparatus.

Staff member Karen Geraghty said: "The day was enjoyed by all – and nobody had any problems.

"It was a nice treat for them with everything going on in terms of them leaving and exams. They thoroughly enjoyed themselves."

Badminton star a hit with pupils

OLYMPIAN Anthony Clark encouraged pupils to pick up a racket when he took part in a PE class at Milwards Primary School in Parigdon Road, Harlow.

The former badminton Commonwealth silver medallist joined the children for a range of sporting activities as part of a drive to encourage more young people to take part in PE and school sport.

Mr Clark won silver in the mixed doubles at the 2010 Commonwealth Games, took part in two Olympics and won two world championship medals.

Since retiring from the sport he has become an ambassador for The Sporting Promise, an organisation which provides young people with the chance to try out various activities.

He said: "We all recognise the benefits of physical activity but in order for young people to engage and create good habits for life, we need to create variety and make sport fun."

School aims to build up social skills with Lego

Head's praise: 'It's a terrific programme'

William Mata

william.mata@hertssexnews.co.uk

LEARNING vital social skills is child's play for pupils at one Harlow primary school.

Freshwaters Academy, in School Lane, has adopted the technique of Lego therapy to help children to interact.

Working in groups of three, the youngsters take on the roles of architect, builder and supplier. Once the architect has designed a building, they must use their communication skills to describe their plans to the builder.

The builder must then use their listening skills before establishing what materials – in the form of Lego bricks – they will need and put in their order with the supplier.

Challenges

Once the process is completed, they switch roles and learn to understand the challenges other people face.

Head of school Marios Solomonides said: "These sessions teach the children to listen and understand, to tolerate each other when the situation gets frustrating, to take their time to explain themselves clearly and to realise what it's like to be in someone else's position."

Lego therapy has been used successfully among children with autism but Freshwaters is using the programme to benefit many of its pupils.

Mr Solomonides added: "We were invited to complete the training and our special educational needs learning assistant Humera Hamid was keen to go along.

"Before the course she had already researched the idea and put it into action the very next day after her training was completed.

"Through Humera's work, we have found Lego therapy challenges all children and helps them with their speech and language skills as well as helping them socially. Some traditional interventions based on English and maths can make the children feel like they have failed.

Reward

"This feels like a reward which is fun, but they are learning so much at the same time. They don't realise it, but they are learning and using methods which will help with their maths and English.

"I am very excited about this; it is a terrific programme."

The school is appealing for donations of Lego. Anyone who can help should email their details to admin@freshwaters.essex.sch.uk

■ DIVERSITY was the theme of the academy's summer celebration, which took the form of a party in the park instead of a traditional school fete.

It showcased the range of cultures, fashions and talents in the school and included music, dance cooking and art.

GP 'revolution' will help cure ailing NHS

MP says 7-day service will ease pressure on hospital A&Es

William Mata

william.mata@hertsexnews.co.uk

GOVERNMENT plans to give struggling health care services a shot in the arm by introducing seven-day GP appointments have been welcomed by Harlow's MP.

Robert Halfon, who met Princess Alexandra Hospital chief executive Phil Morley last week to discuss proposals championed by Health Secretary Jeremy Hunt, said reforms were key to tackling the growing pressure on over-stretched hospital A&E departments.

GP waiting times in the town are currently higher than the national average, with 18 per cent of people having to wait for more than a week to get an appointment compared to a UK average of 16 per cent.

Mr Hunt said on Friday the Government wanted to see a seven-day service introduced during the course of the next parliament.

In return, more money would be invested in general practice and there would be a drive to recruit 10,000 more primary care clinicians, including 5,000 GPs.

He said: "If we do not find better, smarter ways to help our growing elderly population remain healthy and independent our hospitals will be overwhelmed. That is why we need effective, strong and expanding general practice more than ever before in the history of the NHS."

Dr Chaand Nagpaul, of the British Medical Association, said GPs were prepared to work with the Government but warned seven-day services were not necessarily the solution to the problem.

This week Mr Halfon praised what he described as the "brilliant" performance of PAH where 93 per cent of A&E patients are being seen within target times and where 95 per cent gave a positive response to their experience.

HEALTH CHECK: Jeremy Hunt with Robert Halfon during a visit to PAH earlier this year

"These are brilliant statistics and will continue to improve if patients have access to their doctors at weekends because they are less likely to visit A&E unnecessarily," he said. "I look forward to supporting these health services as they work together to continue to provide better care and treatment for Harlow residents."

A PAH spokesman said: "We fully support seven-day working to improve the quality of care within the local community."

"Patients are our top priority and we work with our health and social care stakeholders to ensure that patient access to services and treatment is seamless."

Dr Rob Gerlis, a Harlow GP and chairman of the West Essex Clinical Commissioning Group which is responsible for buying healthcare services in Harlow, Epping Forest and Uttlesford, said: "GP practices are under extreme pressure nationally and the demand for GP appointments is increasing.

"The statistics in Harlow demonstrate that the area faces significant challenges. However, the public do have access to out-of-hours health services through the NHS non-emergency phone number 111.

"Starting this summer, steps are being taken to alleviate demand for GP appointments using funding from a successful bid to the Prime Minister's Challenge Fund."

GP practices throughout west Essex will begin trialling a new service offering patients appointments over the weekend. These will be accessed via patients' normal GP and will involve local doctors and nurses providing services from hubs across Harlow, Epping Forest and Uttlesford.

"We are very excited to have the opportunity to test weekend GP services and the benefits it will bring to patients," said Dr Gerlis.

Nursing home requires some improvements say inspectors

A NURSING home in Harlow has been rated as "requiring improvement" following a visit by the Care Quality Commission.

A report by the CQC inspectors on Alexandra House, in Hamstel Road, flagged up weaknesses in two of five categories.

It said that in terms of being well led and effective, it required improvement. However, in the three other categories of being safe, caring and responsive the home was judged to be good.

Alexandra House, which is run by Runwood Homes Ltd, is a purpose-built nursing home providing care for up to 106 people, many of whom have needs associated with dementia.

During the two-day visit which took place last December, the inspectors spoke to 11 residents, five relatives, four visiting healthcare professionals and 10 members of staff including the service's care manager, deputy manager and regional manager.

Consistent

In a summary of the inspectors' findings, the report states: "People's health care needs were assessed, and care planned and delivered in a consistent way."

"However, we found that the information and guidance provided to staff was not always clear. It would not always enable them to provide appropriate and individual care."

"Any risks associated with people's care needs were assessed and plans were in place to minimise the risk as far as possible to keep people safe."

The report added: "People were happy with the service they were receiving and we received many positive comments about the service and the staff team."

Logan Logeswaran, managing director of Runwood Homes, said: "Although the report says the home requires improvement, the more in-depth detail shows a positive reflection of the service provided."

"The home was rated as good in three of the five inspected areas where the service was found to be safe, caring and responsive. The new management team in place at the time of inspection is now more established and, as stated in the CQC report, staff morale is good."

What you said on Facebook

Ann Crisp: When you feel poorly how do you know if it's serious or not without seeing a doctor? There is no in-between, no chance of appointment within a couple of days and that's what's needed.

Annabelle Kyte: Went to book a routine appointment as per the letter from my GP. First appointment one month later!

Jan Scott Hewlett: Hardly ever have to see a doctor fortunately but last two times I have tried to make an appointment I have had to wait a minimum of three weeks.

Mark Randall: Doctors/NHS seem to be in the firing line whatever they do. Surely with all surgeries running at full capacity it would be impossible to get an appointment immediately unless you are one of the lucky ones who get through first thing in the morning.

Sarah Sullivan: I don't bother anymore because I'm sick of seeing a nurse. If I ask for a doctor I want to see a doctor.

Joanne Crafton: I cannot understand why the doctors is shut at the weekends. People do not stop being ill because it's Friday and it's 5 o'clock! Doctors should be open every day, then there would not be the problems at the hospitals.

Karen Protheroe: How can you make an appointment to be ill? Regular appointments should be catered for but a surgery should be open to anyone who wakes up feeling ill.

Stuart Crook: I have never had a problem. If you need an urgent appointment you phone up at 8.30am and I have always been fitted in. Great doctors and great reception.

Railway's trip back to 1940s

Event revives memories of wartime Britain

Simon Murfitt

star@hertssexnews.co.uk

VISITORS to the Epping Ongar Railway took a step back in time for its annual 1940s event.

Wartime re-enactments, live performances from the A2 Jive Band and vintage vehicles all helped to ensure there was something for everyone at the event, which is staged every year to coincide with the Queen's birthday.

It was held at both North Weald and Ongar stations and run in collaboration with the Zinc Arts Centre which played host to a collection of vintage cars and stalls selling sweet treats and vintage crafts.

As well as re-enactments by the Hertfordshire Home Guard Living History Group, Military Police and array of stalls and displays on show, visitors were treated to an impromptu performance by the Stage One Theatre School, who also put on a number of wartime mini productions at Zinc Arts.

Success

"We had well over 1,000 people over the two days despite the bad weather, which from our point of view is a great success," said Epping Ongar Railway business development manager Dean Walton.

"A lot of people naturally came in 1940s dress to add to the feel of the weekend which was great fun.

"We had some great feedback on the day saying what a great time they had."

The heritage railway also laid on a number of heritage buses that picked up guests from Shenfield and Epping stations for the event.

"Saturday was quieter than Sunday so we may have been hit by the weather in terms of numbers," added Mr Walton.

"When the weather is not so good first thing in the morning, when people are thinking about what to do with their day, we tend not to get as many people come."

"But a good day was had by all and we are now looking forward to launching into the main summer season."

Victim of fraud speaks out to raise awareness

FRAUDSTERS stole more than £7,000 from an 87-year-old Harlow man by posing as bank officials in a telephone scam.

Pensioner James Ward, 87, has lived in Harlow since the 1960s.

His children have long since left home and his late wife Amy passed away three years ago.

He has worked since he was 14 and has always been careful with money – putting enough aside for his retirement.

On Wednesday, April 29, between 9.30am and 10am, Mr Ward was on his own watching snooker on the television, when he was interrupted by a phone call from someone who claimed to be from the bank.

They told him they were investigating fraudulent activity on his account.

Private

Convinced he was talking to the bank, he openly discussed private information, his various accounts, and then finally told the caller his PIN.

The caller then asked Mr Ward to come to the bank, but when he told them he was unable to get there easily, they offered to send a courier.

They told him they needed to collect his card urgently. Within an hour a courier was walking up Mr Ward's driveway to collect the card.

He only realised the whole situation seemed suspicious

VICTIM: James Ward, 87, issued the warning on BBC's Crimewatch Roadshow on Thursday morning

later that night. He caught the first available bus to the town centre the next day and went to the bank but by then it was too late.

The fraudsters had already spent £7,700 on his card. Mr Ward has since been reimbursed by his bank.

The man who came to collect the card is described as white, in his mid-20s, dressed in grey and wearing a woolly hat and about 5ft8 tall.

Detectives believe there may be more victims of this fraud and need them to come forward. Call police on the non-emergency 101 number or Crimestoppers on 0800 555 111.

Help find thugs who assaulted pensioner

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsexnews.co.uk

A FRESH appeal has been launched by detectives investigating two burglaries in Harlow and one in Sawbridgeworth.

Essex Police renewed their appeal for information after the cases were featured on the BBC's Crimewatch Roadshow on Thursday.

In one incident, burglars broke into the Sawbridgeworth home of Neil and Alison McKnight and stole a number of items including a BMW car.

Mrs McKnight said: "I noticed the car wasn't there in the drive. I got quite panicked and then I looked to the door and it was wide open and I knew something had happened.

"I was just greeted by chaos. Every single drawer seemed to have been opened.

"It was quite frightening. I wasn't sure what I was going to find when I went from room-to-room."

Among the items stolen by the burglars were a set of cufflinks that had been in Mr McKnight's family for more than 70 years.

He said: "The initial feeling is shock and then anger at the fact that someone could have such disregard for you and your belongings."

Later in the day an attempt was made to break in to a house in

Burley Hill, Harlow, but the culprits were chased away by the occupant of the property.

Then, less than an hour later, two men knocked at the front door of a house in Long Banks, Harlow. One of them forced his way in to the property and punched 80-year-old Kandasany Sothisrihari in the face before grabbing a 24-arat gold pendant from around his neck.

Mr Sothisrihari tried to push the burglars off before he was assaulted.

His wife, Balasaraswathy, told Crimewatch: "I thought he was really brave to push him back."

The pendant stolen belonged to Mr Sothisrihari's mother.

Unthinkable

"I had it for about 50-odd years before the man stole it, he said. "I am 80 and a grandfather. To do an assault like that is unthinkable."

Mrs Sothisrihari added: "Even now if my husband goes to the front door I always take my phone with me and stand nearby just in case I need to call the police.

"Why can't they find a decent job and earn a living other than steal or rob people, older people who have worked all their lives."

The two suspects then fled in the black BMW stolen from the McKnight house.

Anyone with information about the burglaries should contact DC Gavin Morris on the Essex Police non-emergency number 101 or Crimestoppers on 0800 555111.

Hospices hit back at 'negative' TV images

UPLIFTING: St Clare volunteers Jade Clarke and Dani De'ath show their support for the #notdingy campaign

star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

STAFF at St Clare Hospice are backing a national campaign to counter the "negative" portrayal of hospice care in recent prime-time television dramas.

The #notdingy campaign was started after hospices were described as dingy and grotty in recent episodes of EastEnders and Casualty.

Hospices across the country have responded by tweeting photos of the facilities which provide specialist care to people with terminal or life-limiting illnesses and their families.

Beth Burton, director of patient care at St Clare in Hastingwood, said: "One of the biggest challenges we face in raising awareness of the help we can provide to those living with a life-limiting illness is changing people's perceptions of hospices and hospice care."

"The sad truth is these perceptions can prevent people accessing the specialist care and support we offer when the reality is that the hospice is bright and welcoming and where our passion to improve the lives of those affected by a terminal diagnosis lies at the heart of all we do."

Last year St Clare unveiled its new Space to Breathe area which transformed day therapy and family facilities and also complemented previous renovation work in the inpatient unit.

"We so often get extremely positive feedback from our patients and visitors praising the hospice as a home away from home," said Ms Burton.

Jonathan Ellis, director of policy and advocacy at Hospice UK, said: "We were disappointed with the references to hospices in both EastEnders and Casualty as grotty or dingy as it is worlds away from the reality of modern hospice care."

"We decided to challenge this on social media and encourage hospices to post photos of what they are actually like. We've been delighted by the response. Quite rightly, many of them feel strongly about this and are very proud of the services they offer and the tremendous difference they make in their community."

Golf club pays for new bus shelter after route change

GOLFERS and footballers heading for North Weald can now swing by the village club on a bus.

North Weald Golf Club and the Shooters five-a-side centre have been working with bus company Town Link to include them on a scheduled service.

As a result, the number 19 Harlow to Epping service will now stop outside the golf club and soccer centre in Rayley Lane.

A new bus shelter paid for by the club is currently under construction.

To encourage use of the service, especially by youngsters, the golf club has offered to refund the fares of anyone arriving on the bus to use the facilities.

Stacey Smith, of North Weald Golf Club, said: "We are delighted the new service will put the club and Shooters on the public transport map and integrate the facility for all local residents."

World of fun for Brownies

A GROUP of Brownies from Harlow took part in a sleepover at the Thriftwood Scout Campsite in Brentwood as part of a fun-filled adventure weekend.

The girls from the 2nd Great Parndon pack joined more than 60 others from across the region for the world globe-themed event.

They enjoyed a range of activities including archery, climbing, abseiling and a host of other activities from across the globe.

Police recover large haul of stolen power tools

DETECTIVES are trying to trace the owners of a large number of power tools which they believe were stolen from the Harlow and Epping areas.

The tools and plant equipment were found in shipping containers in Slough by officers from the Essex and Thames Valley forces.

"At the start of this year it was identified that there had been a significant number of thefts of power tools from vans in Essex, particularly in the Harlow and Epping Forest areas," said Detective Constable Clive Singer of West Proactive CID.

A 21-year-old man from London was arrested by Essex Police on suspicion of theft from a vehicle in Harlow on January 19 and released on police bail until August 19.

INSPIRATIONAL runner Vicky Calver has her eyes on the sky as she grinds out hard miles to honour her late father Derek, who encouraged her to take up the sport.

Miss Calver, 38, from Old Harlow, only started running in October 2012 but has since completed the London Marathon before establishing and co-ordinating the 5km Harlow Parkrun in autumn last year.

But, it was in memory of her father that Miss Carver set her biggest challenge yet earlier this year of completing a trilogy of events. First was the St George's Day Marathon, then the Kent Roadrunner before the gruelling Endure24, which she completed along with a team of five friends to raise money for Pancreatic Cancer Research Fund.

Her father Derek died of the disease in June 2013.

As if the challenge wasn't hard enough, Miss Carver had the added pain of her knee from when she tore a ligament earlier in the year.

Miss Carver has raised more than £2,500 for Pancreatic Cancer Research over the years and has so far raised £220 from her trilogy of events in 2015.

"It means a lot to be raising money for a charity that is so personal to me, that I have been affected by."

Teacher inspired to write book for kids

Academy's assistant principal launches his new novel

William Mata

william.mata@hertsexnews.co.uk

A TEACHER put his summer holidays to good use to write children's book Face-Mum, which explores family relationships and online safety.

Russell King, 40, assistant principal at Passmores Academy, in Traces Road, started the 170-page novel in 2013 after a moment of inspiration.

He immediately jotted down the opening two pages before finishing the first draft in October that year.

After many rejections and more than 10 re-writes, his debut novel has now been self-published and is available to buy online.

Mr King said: "Face-Mum tells the story of Michael, a nice boy nearing his 11th birthday and his family have just moved to London when his mum ups and leaves one day.

"However the mum then mysteriously re-appears only through social media sending brief messages. Michael then decides to take a deadly risk to unlock the family's mystery.

"It deals with issues that are very relevant in schools today such as online identity and cyber-safety, there are definitely messages for both primary and secondary students."

He added that he will "definitely not" be using his lesson time to plug the book, but may donate a copy to the school library.

While Mr King is a secondary teacher, and has been at Passmores for a number of years, he said that adapting to writing a novel set in a primary school was relatively straightforward.

"Michael is a composite of nice people and a lot of the characters are loosely based on people I know," adds Mr King, who resisted the temptation to base characters too much on his students.

"He is a good kid, and he makes mistakes but Michael always means well.

"The character nearest myself is probably Michael's dad, a long suffering QPR fan."

Mr King wasn't sure how long the book should be, but found 170 pages to be around an average length for a children's book and was actually the exact length as Fitzgerald's The Great Gatsby.

Giant jellyfish washed up on British beaches

FAMILIES planning to spend a day on the beach got a shock when they found the sand was covered with hundreds of giant barrel jellyfish.

The sea creatures, which resemble dustbin lids, had been washed up on the shore at beaches in south Wales and the south Devon coast.

Beachgoers were told not to touch the jellyfish which, although not dangerous to humans, can still sting.

Jellyfish feed on tiny creatures called plankton which having been thriving because of our recent mild winters. As a result, the jellyfish population has also increased.

The barrel jellyfish, which can grow to a size of 89cm, are the largest species found in south-west England.

Although they are not rare in the UK, it is unusual to see so many washed up on beaches.

Marine conservation scientist Dr Keith Hiscock said: "These are ideal conditions for the jellyfish. "Everything they need to thrive is in place. There is plenty of food, the water temperature is just right, the currents have brought them here and they have bred incredibly well." Rory Dickinson, who works as a countryside manager for the local council, said: "They're generally harmless. They lead amazing lives and are a vital part of our wildlife."

No struggle for artists to play Rent

HARLOW Theatre Company will be staging its first musical for 18 years when the curtain raises for their production of Rent next month.

Rent tells the story of struggling artists attempting to live and love in New York's Alphabet City in the early 1990s, while living in the shadow of HIV/AIDS.

Based on the opera La Boheme, the rock musical has inspired since it opened and features a number of well-known songs including Seasons of Love and La Vie Boheme.

The show features a cast of 18 talented performers from Harlow and the surrounding areas.

Director Jody Randall said: "We've got a hugely talented and capable cast so they makes my job a lot easier."

"We've been rehearsing for six weeks and everything is going great."

The production will feature a five-piece rock band under the musical direction Chris Redman, while choreography comes from Paul Tarling.

Starting life as a workshop production, Rent became famous after writer Jonathan Larson died the night before its off Broadway previews started in 1996.

Transferring to Broadway later that year, the show received critical acclaim winning a Pulitzer Prize for Drama, the Tony Award for Best Musical plus others. The show ran for 12 years on Broadway until closing in 2008.

The original cast saw a young Idina Menzel given her first professional role.

Jody added: "I would urge people not to miss the first Harlow Theatre Company musical in 18 years."

"It's going to be a very energetic show and something people wouldn't usually see so come and view it."

"For anyone who knows Rent – definitely get a ticket."

For the best part of 40 years Harlow Theatre Company has built a reputation as the leading theatre company in and around the town.

■ The show opens at Victoria Hall in Old Harlow on Wednesday, July 8 and runs until Saturday, July 11. Shows start at 8pm and there is a Saturday matinee at 3pm.

Steve returns for a fond farewell

"T'S good to be coming back to Harlow," Steve Lamacq told Go! ahead of his set at The Square. But the legendary new music-loving broadcaster never really left.

The 49-year-old has come a long way since his stint in the town as a young man, becoming the voice of unsigned and under-the-radar music on BBC Radio 1 and 6 Music.

Bands such as Oasis, Coldplay, Bloc Party and most recently Catfish and the Bottlemen all have Steve to thank for their first exposure and mainstream airplay, but the likeable disc jockey has always had Harlow in his heart.

"The Square was my local and was always a venue for people like me who had nowhere else to go," he laughs. "While I was studying journalism at Harlow College, The Square was my hangout and all through those years of study and at the Harlow Gazette (where he worked as a reporter) it was where I always came to.

"Some of my all-time favourite gigs were at The Square and I especially remember seeing Billy Bragg perform just after he had broken through. For the first time we had a real rock star on stage.

"I used to look forward to Wednesday's at The Square, as those were the days when (Newtown) Neurotics would be rehearsing," said Steve of one of his all-time favourite bands and the reason for his return next week.

While it was more than 20 years ago that Steve moved to London, he often returns to the venue and this year has already been back to see The Bohicans.

So when Neurotics frontman Steve Drewett asked him to play some songs as a warm-up to the band's performance on Saturday, July 4, Lamacq couldn't resist popping back.

"I said to Steve [Drewett] I would love to come and play and I have lined up some old favourites, some indie bangers and a few anthems."

The gig will however be tinged with sadness in light of the recent passing of Neurotics original bassist Colin Masters, who died in May after suffering with illness.

Steve was a close friend of Colin's and dedicated an edition of his 4-7pm weekday show on 6 Music to his talent and legacy.

"Colin was a fantastic man," he said, "He was a kind chap and thought so much about other people. We were quite friendly for a long time.

"I remember for my 19th birthday, I had only just arrived in Harlow and didn't know a lot of people, but Colin took me out on my town. "That was just the kind of thing he would do and he was also really funny."

Next weekend's musical trip down memory lane could be the final time Steve plays a set at The Square in its current form, with the longstanding venue set to close its doors at the end of the year.

While the man from Basingstoke is sad to see The Square go, he is hopeful the legacy can carry on.

"The Square will continue for as long as people want it to, but Harlow is lucky to have it as many similar-sized towns cannot claim to boast a venue like The Square.

"I would like to see it become a more integral part of the town, for it to become an alternative Playhouse would be fantastic."

Speaking ahead of Glastonbury, where he is on presenting duty for 6 Music, and covering the dreaded graveyard 10pm-1am slot on Sunday night for the digital service, Steve said he was looking forward to what the festival had to offer.

"I have been going to Glastonbury for 20 years and it just keeps getting bigger, but in many ways it is the same.

"I'm very interested to see how Florence does (on the pyramid stage) and I think she will pull it off.

"I'm also keen to see (roots reggae band) Steel Pulse for my own enjoyment, as well as Slaves, who will put on a show and of course my old friend Billy Bragg, who I see every year."

While Glastonbury will be the highlight of his summer, Steve will also be going to Latitude and Reading festivals, while acting as compere for an alternative brass festival, which offers a venture into the unknown.

However, as far as his career has taken him, Steve Lamacq will always be a man of the people and promoter of grassroots talent, on the lookout for the next big thing - especially if it happens to be from Harlow.

"When I started a record label, the goal was to get a band from Harlow into the top 40, which we achieved with Collapsed Lung's Eat My Goal.

"But it has often been difficult in Harlow, as even though the town is not very far from London, people are not always willing to come out.

"I'm always on the look-out for new music and there is an address on my website to send it to (<http://goingdeafforliving.com/contact>)

"If you mark it with 'Harlow' it will go to the top of the pile, but it will have to be good because I'm a tough critic," he laughs.

■ Steve Lamacq be supporting The Newtown Neurotics performance at The Square, Fourth Avenue on Saturday July 4. For tickets and more information visit www.thesquareharlow.com.

Red Lion under new management

FOR three special nights Harlow's Red Lion will be under new management for a play that smashes through the fourth wall and encourages the rowdy banter only found in pubs.

Early Doors is a production from the appropriately-titled Not Too Tame theatre company, who will be serving drinks as normal to customers before getting into character and acting out a performance.

As part of a new breed of theatre for people that don't do theatre, Early Doors' unique production will set the Red Lion up to be no different to normal and for half-an-hour it will be business as usual with the standard bar staff joining actors for pint-pulling duty.

However, around 8.30pm, the acting will start and the cast will perform around the tables and chairs with much audience participation to be expected.

The show began as a one-off performance in Edinburgh last summer, but after rave reviews (including four stars from The Times) Early Doors is back and writer/actor Andrew Butler can't wait to get going.

"Early Doors is a production that breaks the shackles of the theatre and brings the stage to an audience," he said.

"Nobody would say they don't like television because they saw a bad show, but so many people say they don't like theatre.

"This can show people there is so much more on offer."

Led by director Jimmy Fairhurst, the show has been on the road for nearly a year with performances in Harrogate and Slough being particularly memorable as 50-100 people have regularly turned up, depending on the size of the pub.

The plot sees a brother and sister tavern on the running of the family tavern and not having the best time of it.

Andrew's character gives a pub quiz, which is always well received by crowds happy to shout out answers.

He added: "We take over the running of the pub for the evening and sometimes we'll have punters sitting in their usual chair not knowing what to expect.

"We tend to play in pubs with regulars, who often come up to us afterwards and say how much they have enjoyed the show."

As every pub is different and audiences unpredictable, Early Doors is not without its challenges.

Andrew says: "When we were performing in Bethnal Green, a waitress accidentally dropped a whole tray of glasses behind the bar, which of course diverted everyone's attention, but we were able to keep going and work through it.

"It is a big help to have the regular bar staff in times like those.

"We tend to do a lot of our rehearsals actually in pubs, but every performance is different and every new pub takes some getting used to and has its own atmosphere.

"The show is totally immersive and is in our own world, a long way from the typical theatre stage."

■ The three performances will take place from Monday July 13- Wednesday July 15 at the Potter Street pub from 8pm.

With tickets selling fast for the show, booking is advised. Tickets cost £13 and can be bought at www.harlowplayhouse.co.uk.

Tough times in Wild West

Slow West

WESTERN (15) 83 minutes

Director: John Maclean

Starring: Kodi Smit-McPhee, Michael Fassbender, Ben Mendelsohn, Caren Pistorius, Rory McCann

John Maclean, one-time DJ and sampler with The Beta Band, makes an impressive feature film directorial debut with this stylish western shot on location in New Zealand.

Confidently abiding by conventions of the genre, Slow West is a classic coming of age story, which positions a resourceful young woman at the heart of the blood-spattered action.

"Wearing a dress don't make her a lady," observes one grizzled character, reminding us that appearances can be deceptive in the dustbowl of 1870s Colorado.

This no place for the weak or demure. A moment's hesitation to pull a trigger separates the living and the dead, and no one sheds a tear when you're gone because they are too busy ransacking your pockets.

Maclean's lean script, which gallops to just 83 minutes, won't leave audiences feeling saddle sore and the writer-director confidently orchestrates shoot outs that culminate in a double-digit body count.

Fresh-faced 17-year-old, Jay Cavendish (Kodi Smit-McPhee), journeys "from the cold shoulder of Scotland to the baking heart of America to find his love."

In a mosaic of flashbacks, we discover that the impressionable young man, son of a landowner (Alex MacQueen), pursued a Highland fling with peasant's daughter Rose Ross (Caren Pistorius).

She tried in vain to douse Jay's ardour, informing him, "You're the little brother I never had."

Rose and her father (Rory McCann) departed for foreign climes and now lovesick whelp Jay is on their trail, determined to woo the object of his unrequited affections.

Jay is poorly equipped to survive the brutality of the frontier west, where cigar-chewing outlaws like Payne (Ben Mendelsohn) and his posse roam with murderous intent.

The teenager crosses paths with a world-weary bounty hunter called Silas Selleck (Michael Fassbender), who proposes to chaperone Jay for a fee.

The two loners form a tender yet fragile bond as they trot through a series of misadventures.

"There's more to life than just surviving," philosophises Jay, as Silas shaves his almost hairless chin with a knife.

"Yeah, there's dying," growls the gunslinger, who has neglected to tell Jay that his beloved Rose and her old man are wanted dead or alive for 2,000 US dollars.

Slow West is a compelling portrait of an era, as seen through the eyes of a jack rabbit, who has strayed into a den of wolves.

Smit-McPhee brings an appealing innocence to his stargazing dreamer, who learns harsh lessons about placing trust in strangers on the road.

In stark contrast, Fassbender swaggers with ominous intent, shrouding his character in ambiguity so we are never entirely sure of his allegiances until a barnstorming final reckoning.

The actors are an exceedingly odd couple, yet somehow the mismatch works, set against the majestic locations captured in all of their sprawling glory by Irish cinematographer Robbie Ryan.

SUMMER BREAKS

Still to come...

5 APPLE WATCHES TO BE WON

This week's Summer Sizzler prize is a full-board holiday for two at a 4-star spa and wellness hotel in the beautiful Austrian Alps.

Experience an unforgettable summer holiday – over 1100 metres up in the Austrian Alps – at the amazing Hotel Hofelehner.

This week-long pamper and activity holiday prize could suit a couple on a romantic break or two friends who want to both relax and exercise.

The 4-star hotel is what the Austrians call a superior nature and wellness hotel. The water used throughout the hotel is super soft.

Its spa includes a spacious sauna area, indoor swimming pool and 'natural pond' fed by a mountain spring. Outside there is a heated pool and whirlpool bath with breathtaking views over the surrounding mountains.

Skilled staff offer revitalizing massages, baths and beauty treatments using nourishing natural products, such as swiss pine, hay flower and alpine rose.

All the food served in the restaurant is organic – some of it grown in the hotel garden. The chef draws for inspiration on the cuisine of the local Styrian region, known as the kitchen of Austria.

Once you have relaxed enough, you should go off and explore the mountains. You can do this by hiking, running, mountaineering or mountain biking. If you want to take it easy, ride an electric bike. Or maybe you would prefer to go down into the valley and play golf?

The local area known as Schladming-Dachstein has 1,000 kms of hiking paths, 930 km of cycle routes, 45 running trails and four golf courses. There are also different levels of 'iron road' climbs prepared on the sunny south face of the Dachstein mountain. (In the winter Schladming-Dachstein becomes one of the best ski areas in Europe, but that's another story.)

So whether you are a loved-up couple or a pair of friends enter this competition for a fantastic holiday in the Austrian Alps.

Wareing's kitchen secrets

He doesn't mince his words as a judge on MasterChef, but what's Marcus Wareing like in his own kitchen? Jeananne Craig finds out

Marcus Wareing's latest restaurant is slap bang in the middle of London's Theatreland, but his kitchen is a drama-free zone.

A former protege of the famously fiery Gordon Ramsay, the top chef has exacting standards and hasn't been afraid to speak his mind in the past – in fact, he once left one MasterChef semi-finalist in tears, during a 2013 guest stint on the show.

But the spotless kitchen of Tredwell's, the West End restaurant Wareing opened last September, is an oasis of calm: all sparkling silver worktops, carefully filed away ingredients, and chefs quietly preparing for the busy evening ahead.

Which all comes as a huge relief, because I'm about to cook for the Michelin-starred man himself.

Before I get my apron on, Wareing admits he has mellowed in recent years – something the father of three puts down to professional happiness, mastering the work-life balance, and replacing Michel Roux Jr. as a permanent fixture on the MasterChef judging panel last year.

"The MasterChef directors direct you, all the film crew, all the sound men and all the contestants in a very different way to how chefs direct a kitchen," he notes.

"They do it in such a calm manner. I've used and absorbed some of their expertise and calm direction to be able to create my own way of approaching my team."

As for his earlier appearances on the contest, the Southport-born chef smiles and confesses: "You're asked to come onto a show, you're dragged out of the kitchen and put in a taxi, you're still in service mode, you go into the studio and get a load of mediocre food put in front of you, you tell them what you think of it and you get in the car and go again. It happens so fast..."

He promises we'll have fun in the kitchen – or "engine room" – where we'll be preparing one of the dishes he cooked up at last weekend's Taste of London festival alongside other foodie stars, including Raymond Blanc and Thomasina Miers.

Wareing and Chantelle Nicholson, group operations director of his eateries (he has two other restaurants in the capital), patiently guide me through the prepping and cooking of the harissa-glazed aubergine starter, a popular choice at Tredwell's.

Thankfully, it's a really simple dish to make (see recipe below) – slicing an aubergine, browning it on a hot plate, binging it in the oven and then brushing on a glossy harissa and agave syrup mix.

When it comes to plating up, however, I'm on my own, with no idea how the dish is usually presented.

"Just imagine you're hosting a dinner party and all your friends are there, waiting," Wareing says with a grin. Is that a wicked glint I detect in those piercing blue eyes?

As the heat in the kitchen builds up, I layer the aubergine slices before cack-handedly attempting to pipe some coconut yoghurt and sprinkle an overly generous helping of red chilli on top.

Alas, my yoghurt has melted in no time (I laboured too long on that piping) and the aubergines look more slumped than stacked, but Wareing gamely tucks in as I look on, red-faced.

There's "too much heat", he says, because I've been too liberal with the harissa and red chilli, but overall, he seems happy enough with the taste. As for my sloppy presentation, he assures me that's something I can brush up on.

I don't think I'll be landing a job here any time soon ("I don't think you'd want one, it's quite hot in there!" Nicholson says diplomatically), and there's no way my dish would have made the grade to be served to a customer.

But I'm delighted all the same when Wareing, no doubt keen to get me out the door before the Friday night rush begins, jokingly tells me: "You're through to the next round".

Fancy having a go? Here is a recipe from Tredwell's by Marcus Wareing for you to try at home...

Pulled Pork Sliders

MAKES 8 BUNS

Ingredients

2kg pork belly

For the mirepoix (flavouring):

25ml vegetable oil

½ onion, peeled and quartered

1 stalk celery, halved

1/2 leek, white only, halved

1 carrot, peeled and quartered

2 cloves garlic, bashed

1 cinnamon stick

1 star anise

½ orange, halved

1 red chilli, halved

¼ bunch coriander stalks

40g fresh root ginger, peeled and roughly chopped

For the cooking liquor:

125ml Madeira wine

1L chicken or vegetable stock

1tbsp soy sauce

2tbsp hoisin sauce

1tbsp honey

To serve:

8 brioche buns

25g stem ginger in syrup, finely sliced

½ Granny Smith apple, finely sliced

Method

Heat a large pan with the vegetable oil. Add the mirepoix ingredients and brown well. Add the cooking liquor and the pork belly and bring to a very gentle simmer. Cover and allow to cook slowly for three hours.

Remove the belly and set aside to cool slightly. Strain off the stock and place the liquid in a pan and bring to the boil. Simmer until reduced by half.

Gently pull the pork belly apart using two forks and mix with enough of the reduced sauce to bind together. Heat up enough for eight buns.

For the buns, cut in half and toast the inside. Add the pork belly then the sliced ginger and finely sliced apple. Serve.

Make the most of the coast

Golden beaches, remote inlets and shimmering mudflats - the Essex coast is 350 miles of sheer pleasure just waiting to be (re)discovered

1 Clacton: West Beach at Clacton is every inch a traditional sandy beach with a pier. It is perfect for families with young children, as it has gently shelving sand that runs down to the water's edge.

Nearby, is the Pavilion Fun Park and an excellent choice of bars, cafes and restaurants. Parents will also be assured by the town's child-safety wristband scheme for those who get lost on the beach.

2 Walton-on-the-Naze: Walton enjoys some three miles of sandy beaches and the Naze itself, red sandstone cliffs formed in the Ice Age, is a fossil-hunter's paradise.

The iconic Naze Tower was built in the 1720s as a navigational aid for passing ships but today is an art gallery and café. According to Trip Advisor, Walton's beach ranks as excellent with the pier (Britain's second-longest) and the pretty beach huts adding to the ambience.

3 Frinton-on-Sea: Frinton is a very different proposition. The esplanade is bare, save for a fine, sandy beach and Victorian-style beach huts.

This is the legacy of Sir Richard Powell Cooper who - 100 years ago - oversaw Frinton's development. His vision starkly contrasted with those of the burghers of neighbouring towns and to this day, Frinton offers a far more serene seaside experience.

4 Wrabness: For those who like their coastal escapes to be a little more, whisper it, secret, then Wrabness is a must. This sleepy village, west of Harwich, is a haven for artists, nature lovers and sailors. The beach is a mixture of sand and shingle with a collection of quirky - and in some cases, very large - beach huts standing sentry over it. This is an ideal destination for a romantic picnic with a loved one, or a tranquil place to take a stroll with the dog.

5 Canvey Island: Canvey's two principal beaches are Thorney Bay and Concord. Thorney Bay is small, sheltered and sandy. Behind it is a large, grassed area with a play park, which some parents will find is welcome relief once the charm of making sand castles has lost its lustre - although the sand quality does ensure excellent mini fortresses!

The larger Concord beach features a tidal pool for younger children to paddle in and is close to the island's seafront shops, cafes and promenade. It is worth making the trip alone for the Labworth Restaurant. A stunning 1930s building, designed by Ove Arup who went on to help create the Sydney Opera House, the Labworth enjoys panoramic views over the Thames Estuary, with a menu understandably reflecting its closeness to the sea.

Essex property market grows in confidence

NEW research from Beresfords, Essex's leading independent estate agent, reveals that the county's property market is continuing to grow in confidence and buyer activity is already starting to sizzle this summer.

In its fifth Confidence Monitor, Beresfords reports that competition is heating up, with close to eight buyers now competing for every new instruction. The number of viewings is also rising by eight per cent annually in the month of April, highlighting just how active Essex's buyers are in the run up to summer. The number of offers has also increased by eight per cent over the same period indicating that these are serious buyers.

Paul Beresford, managing director of Beresfords, said: "It is great to see confidence running strong and as the weather heats up we can only expect the property market to do the same.

"The growth in the number of viewings and the corresponding rise in offers indicates that these are serious buyers who are looking to move, so now is a great time to sell.

"One of the major growth areas since the General Election has been the £1million plus market. We had seen a cooling down of this market in the run up to the election, but this has since been reversed and the levels of buyers and instructions has increased."

Buyer demand has been most prevalent among buy-to-let investors, with registrations increasing significantly in April, by 39 per cent annually.

Paul Beresford continued: "Essex remains a popular investment hotspot for buy-to-let landlords. The county's excellent commuter links and varied housing supply combines to produce investment opportunities which are easily let and provide strong yields.

"With interest rate rises not expected until early 2016 and the impending changes to pension annuities, the popularity of buy-to-let is only going to increase as the year progresses."

More applicants are wanting to purchase

ACCORDING to a new report from Balgore Property Group, the number of buyers looking to purchase a property in Essex has risen on average by 14.5 per cent year on year.

Over the last 12 months, Chelmsford has recorded the largest increase in applicants (42 per cent), followed by Hornchurch (26 per cent) and Basildon (18 per cent).

The numbers of buyers chasing each property has also surged in parts of Essex, with Chelmsford recording the largest increase, up by 64 per cent year on year, followed by Hornchurch up by 27 per cent and Romford up by 25 per cent.

Martin Gibbon, a Fellow of the National Association of Estate Agents and group director of Balgore Property Group, commented: "Demand for property in Essex is booming and this has been helped by the fantastic mortgage deals that are offer and of course, the Government's Help To Buy Scheme. Recent Bank of England figures show that the number of house loan approvals for April hit 68,000, the biggest monthly rise in UK mortgage approvals since 2009.

"There has never been a better time to buy, as the mortgage price war has been driving home loan rates to record lows.

"Our research shows that Chelmsford has seen the number of applicants leap by 42 per cent, as the city continues to attract commuter and professionals, due to the redevelopment and investment in the city centre."

There's always room for improvement

Considering how to add real value to your home? Vicky Shaw has some tips and advice from property expert Phil Spencer

Sprucing up your home is not only an important part of making sure that it continues to fit your day-to-day needs – it can also be a great way to add value to your property.

With signs that the housing market is picking up again, and reports highlighting a shortage of properties on the market in some popular areas, now could be a good time to make improvements to maximise the value of your home if you're planning to sell in the near future.

A new report from Barclays Mortgages, which used research from estate agency network Countrywide, suggests that home improvements can add around £31,000 to the value of a property for someone buying it, doing it up throughout and then selling it on within 12 months.

However, this calculation does not factor in the cost of having the work done.

The research also suggests that across the UK, adding an extension of 30m squared (around the size of two double bedrooms with fitted wardrobes) can generate a return of around £14,000 on the value of a property.

But if you're thinking about having work carried out, it's worth considering that the report found huge variations across the country in the value that can be added through improvements.

In some areas, home owners could end up spending more on building their extension than the amount of extra value they would create in their home, the report found.

So it's vital to do your homework before having work done.

To find out more about the dos and don'ts of home improvements, I put some questions to TV property guru Phil Spencer, the spokesman for the Barclays report:

■ If you had a £5,000 budget to spruce up a property, which room of the house would you spend it on and why?

"It really depends on what individual requirements you have. If I was to suggest one room to focus on, I'd advise the kitchen or bathroom. These both receive lots of use on a daily basis and are the main rooms people pay particular attention to when viewing properties."

■ If you had a more modest £500 budget, what would you spend it on in order to make your house more appealing?

"Some simple interior refurbishments always add a sense of freshness, a change of paint colour and some new accessories such as cushions will make the room feel brand new. If you're frugal, £500 should cover the cost of a few rooms."

■ Is it sometimes better to try and spread your budget across the whole of the house, rather than concentrating on one room?

"Of course that depends on budget available, but yes, absolutely. Home improvement is a constant evolving project for any home owner; if people focus on making small changes in each room as they go, making larger home improvements will not feel as daunting."

■ If someone is considering a big-budget improvement, what should they take into account?

"Home improvers should always do their research and seek advice where possible. When taking on a large improvement, having trust in the people you're working with is vital. If the home owner's intention is to sell, then looking at the local market and seeking advice from estate agents would be a shrewd move. Always allow extra time for delays. In my experience, something is likely to be postponed for a number of reasons. If this is worked into expectations initially, it won't be such an issue."

■ In the current housing market, could it be better for some home owners to hold off making a home improvement as the value of the house could increase anyway?

"Relying on property prices moving up or down is a risk and deciding whether you need to make a home improvement or whether moving to another property is right for you is usually the better question to ask and ultimately the decision to make."

TOP TIPS: From property expert Phil Spencer

PROPERTY NEWS

Housing market heats up

Vicky Shaw says a mortgage price war and a shortage of properties for sale is helping boost house prices

As we move into the summer, the housing market is showing signs of heating up once more. A string of new reports have painted a picture of a pick up in the market, which got off to a fairly subdued start in early 2015.

Figures from the Bank of England show the number of mortgage approvals made to home buyers jumped to a 14-month high in April.

Meanwhile, Nationwide Building Society has reported that UK house prices reached a new record high in cash terms in May, of £195,166 on average.

This surpassed a previous record high of £193,048 reached the previous month.

April had been the first time that Nationwide had ever recorded typical UK house prices going over the £190,000 mark.

So what is behind the house price push up?

Well, several studies have pointed to a lack of homes on the market continuing to be a strong factor. In popular areas, an upward pressure is being put on house prices, as buyers have fewer properties to fight over.

In May, the stock of homes on the market plunged to the lowest levels since records started in 1978, according to the Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors (RICS). At the same time, buyers' demand for homes is being supported by the economic recovery.

More buyers may also be encouraged by the raft of attractive mortgage deals currently on offer.

A mortgage price war has broken out in recent months, with many lenders offering their lowest-ever rates. Cash-back perks are also increasingly being offered with mortgages.

The number of mortgages offering cash-back has more than doubled over the last four years, with 948 cash-back mortgage deals on offer by early June, according to financial website Moneyfacts.

But it's not just buyers with a mortgage who are adding to the competition for homes – there's also a healthy level of demand coming from cash buyers.

Matthew Pointon, a property economist at Capital Economics, says it's estimated cash buyers made up more than 37 per cent of transactions in the first three months of 2015 – the highest share since comparable records started in 2006. He says: "Those cash buyers are now being joined by a growing number of mortgage-dependent buyers."

So what's next for the housing market?

Several experts have predicted further property price increases in the coming months. Pointon says: "Even if more homeowners start to put their homes on the market, as we expect, it will take time for stock levels to increase. Therefore, house prices will continue to rise over the coming months."

But he says that with stricter mortgage regulations in place, "we doubt the jump in mortgage lending seen in April will be sustained".

Across the whole of 2015, he says: "A significant, if not boom-like, gain of six per cent to seven per cent in house prices remains the most likely outcome."

Howard Archer, chief UK and European economist at IHS

Global Insight says: "There are increasing signs that housing market activity is now on the up, while a shortage of properties coming on to the market is exerting upward pressure on prices."

"Consequently, we have recently lifted our forecast house price increase in 2015 to six per cent from five per cent. We currently see prices rising by around five per cent in 2016."

And Martin Ellis, a housing economist at Halifax, also agrees that an imbalance between supply and the demand "is likely to continue to push up house prices in the coming months."

But Ellis also notes that house prices have been increasing at a much faster rate than earnings.

Robert Gardner, Nationwide's chief economist, adds: "Over the longer term, we would expect house price growth to converge with earnings growth, which has typically been around 4 per cent per annum."

OBJECTS OF DESIRE >with DONNA PRIOR

Take a seat

Every week we pick out a different object or theme and showcase some of the biggest, boldest and best around. This week with summer here we have gone for seats of all shapes and sizes for your garden

IF space is tight this chair can be folded away and easily stored until next year once summer is finished. Price: £69.99 from www.englishabode.com

IT might look like a fish tank with one of the sides missing, which wouldn't be great for the goldfish, but it is actually a quirky chair. Price: £565 from www.sweetpeaandwillow.com

IF people are always jumping into your deck chair as soon as your back is turned this should help as it can be personalised with your initials. Price: £134.99 from www.GettingPersonal.co.uk

THIS unusual tree seat can be placed around a tree – rather than you having to wait for a tree to grow inside it! Price: £299.99 from www.englishabode.com

THIS swinging garden chair will look amazing in most back gardens – although if you live in a flat it might look a bit weird on your balcony alongside your pot plants. Price: £1,950 from www.gomodern.co.uk

THIS seat has been designed to be left outside all year round but is versatile enough to be used inside too when the weather leaves the garden effectively out of bounds. Price: £210 from www.wovenhill.co.uk

THIS chair is a bit like that dress that sent the internet into meltdown. Is it yellow? Is it white? Actually it is yellow and white. Price: £225 from www.outthereinteriors.com

AMUSE your family and friends with hapless attempts to get into this hammock without falling on your face. Price: £139 from www.livingitup.co.uk

THIS chair will make you feel like you're on safari. Hopefully you won't be confronted by any lions in your back garden, though. Price: £790 from www.gomodern.co.uk

THIS teardrop, egg-shaped hanging chair allows you to rock away evenings in the summer sun. Price: £349 from www.livingitup.co.uk

"How Long Has It Been On The Market?"

One of the first things a buyer will ask an estate agent when offered a property is "How long has it been on the market?", and with good reason. Buying a property is a large transaction and it takes courage to commit to undertake such an apparently huge decision - often with very little support other than pure instinct.

One of the most persuasive and apparently reliable indications as to the suitability of a property is to check out whether other people have expressed an interest. There is great comfort in knowing that you are not the only one who would like to buy the property.

Once people hear that others have expressed an interest, then everyone seems to want the property, as the power of "social proof" kicks in. This competition can often stimulate a quick sale at a high price, and usually occurs when a property is attractively priced in relation to other properties available for sale and is new to market.

Of course the opposite is also true. When the price of a property is overly ambitious, the excitement that should surround a property that is new on the market is reduced, and it can begin to go stale. This is when nobody has made an offer and the property is seen to be repeatedly advertised. When buyers find out that it is no longer new on the market they think "Well nobody else wanted it - perhaps we are making a mistake."

So our advice would be to position your property as one of the best available in its price range from day one. This will prompt interest and encourage asking price offers from qualified buyers. Under your agent's advice, you should then have a choice of buyer, resulting in a fast, reliable, sale at the highest price the market will pay.

“We are now seen by a larger, more engaged audience.” this puts our business in a much stronger position in what is a very competitive market place.

“Don't just take it from us... We've been helping TMS Property Services Ltd grow a social media audience since October 2014. It's been a great success. Here's what their Managing Director had to say:

“In the first few months our Facebook likes have increased from 168 to 801, exceeding our expectations. Our Twitter page had 8 followers when we started, and currently stands at 327. More importantly, we know our posts are now seen by a larger, more engaged audience. We are sent regular reports from our account manager Alex who is always extremely helpful. Alex resolved inherent issues with our Google Plus business page, making it easier for people to find us while the regular posts are improving our ranking in Google. Commercially, this puts our business in a much stronger position in what is a very competitive market place. At TMS Property Services we would be happy to recommend the Local World social media and SEO packages to any business looking to reach more potential customers”.

MISSING GREY
TABBY CATOur beautiful cat went missing last Friday 19th June from Stanstead Road in Hoddesdon.
We have been told by more than one person that she was seen in a garden on the corner of Stanstead drive on Friday morning and had sadly died. The council were called but when they arrived shortly afterwards she had disappeared. We now have no idea what has happened to our little cat and are devastated. If you have any information or have seen her since please get in contact with us, we are desperate for any information. Please check in your garden, under bushes or in your sheds. We would be so grateful to find out where she is. Her name is Polly, she is two years old and very timid. She is a light grey tabby cat with pale grey/green eyes and has black ring markings down her tail with a black tip. Thank you for your help.Hoddesdon 07710 496812

Star Sport throws the spotlight on Harlow Hawks Basketball Club

A NEW HOPE: Players will hope to follow in the footsteps of England U18 player Josh Steel, who started out at Harlow Hawks

Club looking for the next Josh Steel

HARLOW Hawks Basketball Club are looking for the next Josh Steel as they prepare to launch two new U12 teams for next season.

Hawks head coach Shab Niaz, 46, said the club hopes to run a boys' team and a mixed team.

He hopes talented new players can follow in the footsteps of Kent Crusaders player and England U18 international Steel, who spent four years with the club when he was younger before progressing to the highest level of the game.

Presently Harlow run U8, U11, U12, U14 and U18 teams, but only the current U12s, U14s, U16s and U18s play league basketball.

The club have ten coaches operating throughout the various age groups.

Last season's U11 section was particularly successful with Harlow operating two teams and playing in a league containing Stevenage, Cambridge, Braintree, Wickford, Brentwood and Thurrock, with matches regularly taking place at Mark Hall Sportscentre.

Bigger players

Meanwhile, the U12 and U14 age groups train together at Harlow Leisurezone, which helps the younger children as they are regularly playing against bigger players.

The U18s play in the Basketball England National League.

Meanwhile, the new U14s league which ran for the first time last season and was organised by Harlow Hawks, has been a huge success.

Harlow played home and away matches against the likes of Braintree, Wickford and Colchester.

"The kids have really enjoyed that," said Niaz. "If additional teams come in next season, then we can expand the league further."

"If we can get the numbers I am looking at putting a girls team in a league," said Niaz.

Hawks have their own lady coach, Colleen Campbell, who is a school teacher in Ware. Niaz believes this will help encourage more girls to take up the sport.

Earlier sessions suffered from being run on the same night as some Harlow netball clubs held their own training sessions, but Niaz hopes the decision to switch the nights they practice to a different night will help the popularity of the club's sessions.

Pride at Hawks' teens coaching new players

Trio teaching young basketball players for GCSE in PE

by Alan Scott

alan.scott@hertssexnews.co.uk

SHAB NIAZ is full of pride at the fact that three of Harlow Hawks Basketball Club's U18 players are now coaching its junior teams and officiating at games.

The Hawks head coach has revealed that without the refereeing input of U18 players Joshua Haddow, 16, Joshua Duttnall, 17, and Shab's son Mubbasher Niaz, many of the U11 league matches would not take place.

The youngsters have adopted the training sessions as part of their GCSE PE syllabus.

Mubbasher studies at Burnt Mill, Haddow is at St Mark's and Duttnall is at sixth form at Leventhorpe in Sawbridgeworth.

The teenagers have been with the club since the age of five.

The U11s and U8s also enjoy training sessions run by the trio of U18 players at Mark Hall Sportscentre.

Niaz explained: "They started coaching with me two years ago. Primarily they are doing this for their GCSE PE.

"They organise what they are going to cover with the young teams: passing, shooting, warm-up drills.

Confidence

"It's helping them with their education. Certainly speaking for Mubbasher he has the confidence to talk to people.

"They have developed a rapport with the youngest kids as well. It's pleasing to see him and I'm very proud of how the kids have done."

The three boys all have Level One refereeing coaching badges with Basketball England.

"The U11 league could not carry on running without these guys," Niaz added.

Meanwhile, Niaz is hoping England Basketball have a rethink on plans which will take the competitive edge out of league matches for U12 age group teams next season.

Some sides will play with just four players on each team and play across court rather than on full size pitches, while rather controversially the scores will revert back to 0-0 at the end of each quarter, and the final results will not be recorded.

"A lot of clubs are not happy with that format," said Niaz. "We need to look at other European nations."

However, Niaz is delighted with the number of youth teams now being run at the club.

The club uses not only the Leisurezone and Mark Hall Sportscentre, but also Passmores Academy in Tracys Road for training and matches.

"We hope we can carry on growing, we have grown quite a bit over the last three years," he said.

"We are slowly progressing and that is reflected in the number of players being picked for county teams in Essex and Hertfordshire.

"In the 2013-14 season there were seven – four in Herts and three in Essex – now there are nine."

Niaz stepped down as first team player and coach at the start of last season, but missed it so much he stepped back on to the court just a couple of months into the 2014-15 season.

Despite just being a few years off 50, he will continue to play in the Herts County Basketball League next season, which starts in September.

Big Cats clawed in Harlow fans

HAWKS head coach Shab Niaz was delighted with the success of the Essex Leopards experiment in Harlow last season.

The English National League Division One club played nearly half its matches at the Harlow Leisurezone in front of huge crowds.

It was Niaz's idea for Leopards to share the Leisurezone venue with Harlow Hawks, rather than play all the matches at Brentwood.

The success has shown there's a real appetite for basketball in Harlow.

Niaz said Leopards supremo Dave Ryan hoped more matches would come to Harlow next season.

"He [Ryan] is very happy with what they got at Harlow. We knew when we started the process that we were not going to pack out the stadium straight away.

"Gradually the numbers are increasing and we are very happy for it to continue next season with more games at Harlow," Niaz said.

"We make sure there is no conflict of interest. It works for both of us."

Leopards' overseas stars regularly run training camps and sessions at schools in their main home in Brentwood and Niaz is hopeful a similar operation can run in Harlow.

"It's something we would like to do in the future. We as a club don't have the resources.

"The coaches at Harlow have normal day jobs," Niaz explained.

Leopards reached the play-off final but are now looking for a new coach after Robert Youngblood quit.

Sam seals all-American honour

SAM Watts has continued his stunning season by becoming an all-American athlete.

Having qualified just over two weeks ago, the 23-year-old, who was born and brought up in Harlow, competed in the NCAA Division One Championships in Eugene, Oregon.

In a busy weekend for Watts, who attends Texas Christian University in the United States, he ran in three events, the 200m, 4x100m and 4x400m relays.

The highlight of his competition came in the 4x100m, where he ran the second leg.

In their heat, the team of Cameron Echols-Luper, Watts, Ronnie Baker and Kolby

Listenbee ran an impressive 38.65sec – the fastest time run by a college team this season – to qualify for the final.

The quartet then bettered that with a fantastic 38.59 in the final, however it was still not enough to take gold.

They were just pipped to the line by the Arkansas Razors who posted a time of 38.47.

TCU's time was quick enough to earn them first team all-American honours, however, which is awarded to outstanding amateur athletes.

In his favoured individual event, the 200m, Watts ran a decent 20.74 in his heat.

However, this was only good enough to come sixth and therefore he did not qualify for the final.

The eventual winner was 20-year-old Andre De Grasse in an outstanding 19.58, the fastest ever time by a college athlete.

In the 4x400m, Watts and his relay team came sixth in their heat in 3min 06.25sec.

Again, this was not good enough to qualify for the final.

The event capped off a fantastic American season for Watts, which saw him hold the fastest indoor 200m time of 20.69 back in February.

He will be competing in the British Championships in Birmingham on July 3-5.

ON YOUR MARKS: Sam Watts has had a great American season

Great turnout a boost for athletic club in East meet

HARLOW Athletic Club fielded its largest team this season in their latest Eastern Young Athletics League meeting.

Thirty athletes across all age groups took part and there were some excellent performances.

Shemar Boldizar ran 11.1sec in the U17 A-string 100m.

Despite being a personal best (PB) he was fourth in a high quality race.

Harry Woodall won the U17 B race in 11.6.

Both boys went again in the 200 metres and again ran quickly.

Boldizar was third this time and Woodall won the B event.

Jordan Sheridan jumped 11.75m in the U17 triple jump to claim fourth, five centimetres away from his PB.

Kieran Bull threw well in both the U17 javelin and discus events.

His discus throw of 29.85m was a PB and he looks set to break 30 metres in his first season in the age group.

In the javelin he threw 27.42m, close to his best performance.

Christian Barker was third in the U17 1500m (4min 49.7sec) – his best time as an U17.

In the U15 age group, Teale Cunningham won in his first 800m hurdles race of the season (13.6).

National ranking

This time put him straight into the national ranking list at 150.

Danny Sanderson won the B 80m hurdles, with a time which would have put him third in the A race had he been allowed to compete in the same race as Cunningham.

Cunningham followed up his hurdles success with first place in the high jump and second in the 200m.

Dominique Diomond made his first appearance for the team and ran 12.2 to earn second in the 100m and there were two solid performances in the 800m. Sam Collins was fourth in the A race and club debutant, Callum Parish was third in the B race.

Laura Kulagowska made her track debut in the U15 girls' 800m, clocking 2:49.01.

Lottie Rowedder continued her strong track season with a third in the 1500m in 5:15.07 and Eilidh Malcolm was just outside her PB as she ran the 300m in 47.4.

Meanwhile, on the field Beth Harryman picked up a second and third place in the high jump and long jump respectively.

Ami Ashby stepped up to the A event because of a late withdrawal, and did well.

Izzy Brown and Lauren Barker also hit form.

The club fielded ten athletes in the U13 age group.

Regan Lawrence picked up two third place finishes in the 100m and 200m respectively; Maye Ukuti won the B 100m; Charlotte Pratt was second in the 800m; Grace Malcolm was third in the B 800m; and Ella Macfarlane ran an impressive 100m.

Junior coach Steve Lott said:

"Slowly but surely we are building a culture of competition and the numbers are increasing. "I saw some very encouraging performances especially from some of our younger athletes.

"I'm also particularly grateful to those who have turned out twice this weekend. It was a good day for the club and athletes alike."

Speedy Sidnie hits top gear at senior school

Year 7 pupil is finding his feet

YOUNG Harlow athlete Sidnie Ward has quickly found his feet in senior school sport.

The Year 7 student from Burnt Mill Academy was picked out for his athletic ability when he joined the secondary school.

He has been crowned with a number of titles in recent months.

He has become Essex Schools Year 7 cross country champion, Essex and East of England indoor U13 800m champion, Essex outdoor 200m and 800m U13 champion and Essex Schools U13 800m champion.

He also came third in the South East of England inter counties cross country competition, and is ranked second in the UK for U13 boys' 1500m and third for 800m.

The 12-year-old, who trains three times a week, said: "I've been training with Woodford Green AC with Essex Ladies for a few months after being scouted at school at the start of my time here.

"I really enjoy running and competing. There's always something you can do to improve and be better than the time before.

"You have to believe in yourself."

Sidnie will be soon back in action as he is running for Essex over 800m next month at Kingston

GREAT TIME:
Pupils from St Luke's Catholic Primary School

Pupils are truly a smash hit at tennis tournaments

WITH Wimbledon almost upon us, the children of St Luke's Catholic Primary School have been showing off their tennis skills at a week of tournaments at the Latton Bush Centre. Over two days, the mornings consisted of drills and skills, followed by matches in the afternoons. Over the days St Luke's entered six teams – 34 children – and had some fine results, particularly the Year 3 and 4 teams, who came second. PE teacher Ann Cook said:

“Harlow Tennis Club is a fantastic facility and it has been an amazing opportunity for our children.”

MARTIAL ARTISTS: Thomas Lambert and Brad Chaplen

Judo pair do their coaches proud at event

PLENTY of fighting spirit was shown by two members of Harlow Judo Club at a high-quality regional event.

Brad Chaplen, 14, and Thomas Lambert, 13, were taking on players of a very high standard at the Northern Home Counties Pre-Cadets & Cadets Ranking Open at Harlow's Leisurezone.

However, both impressed at the Level Four event with Thomas returning home with a medal.

He bagged a silver in the pre-cadets section.

Brad, fighting in the cadets section, failed to proceed past the compound knockout stage.

However, it was his first competition at such a high level and he showed his potential.

The two players were trained by head coach Mick Ellis with assistance from team manager, Alex Hemming.

“Both fought extremely well and gained valuable experience,” said Ellis.

“We were very proud of their efforts.”

The Northern Home Counties Ranking Event was well organised and was run by the Harlow club's own Sally Hemming and Leigh Hemming with additional help from club members.

The club is based in Foldcroft, Harlow.

HISTORY MAKERS

Harlow teams do battle while Libby makes her debut

by Alasdair Gold

alasdair.gold@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THE rain this month has not stopped plenty of history being made as Harlow sides have taken to cricket pitches.

Although the weather saw off all of Harlow Town and Harlow Cricket Club's other games on Saturday, that threw the spotlight on their second teams' big match – the first time the two sides had met in years at a senior level.

In the Essex League Division Two clash, it was Harlow Town who finished victorious by 11 runs in a reduced overs game at Phoenix Park.

Harlow won the toss and chose to field, which seemed to be the sensible decision with the prevailing damp conditions.

Harlow had Town at 60-2 but with some poor fielding and inspired batting they progressed smoothly, seeing them reach 267-4 in their allotted 45 overs, with Jason Gladwin unbeaten on 102 and a superb innings of 85 in exactly 85 balls from Charlie Coleman dominating the scoring for Town.

Harlow were to rue five dropped catches.

As the innings finished then down came the rain. After a lengthy stoppage, an amended target of 216 in just 30 overs was set for Harlow.

After losing two quick wickets with openers Dennis Perry (3) and George Messenger (0) departing, it was left to Dip Basnet (55) and Luke Monger (44) to bring Harlow back into the match.

However, the duo then lost their wickets in quick succession and the target proved beyond the rest of the order as Harlow finished on 205-9 from their 30 overs.

Hotly contested

“It was a great credit to both clubs that a hotly-contested derby was played in a great spirit with so much local pride riding on the game,” said Gladwin.

“Both umpires Stuart Alderson and Pip Ridell should take great credit for managing the game and Ben [Eversden] and Andre [Ridell] for getting the game going after the rain break and keeping a lid on their teams' emotions.

“I'm proud to have scored a century in a derby game, but Charlie Coleman's all round performance with his 85 and his great ground fielding and a match changing catch was the difference between the teams.”

Further history was made this month for Harlow Cricket Club in a fifth team match against Sawbridgeworth IV as U13 player Libby Riddell became the first female to represent the club in a senior league match.

Although she did not get to bat as the overs ran out, the youngster did bowl an over, conceding just five runs, but could not stop Harlow losing by seven wickets.
